Digests what you Dyspepsia Cure

The process of digestion is simply explained. In the mouth, food is masticated and mixed with saliva containing a digestant called ptyalin. In the stemach, it is acted upon by gustric juice containing pepsin, which digests albuminous foods. In the intestines, pancreatin is added to digest fats and starches.

Indigestion always indicates an insufficient amount of one or all of these digestants. At first thought it seems proper to abetain from foods not easily digested; but reflection shows us that while this affords relief by giving the weakened organs less to do, it only makes them weaker by giving them less nourishment. If you suffer from indigestion, the only right thing to do is to eat a generous variety of food and digest it by using such a preparation as Konor Dyspapsia Cune, which contains all the known digestants, and completely digests what you eat. It can't help but do you good
